I would like to programmatically access files that are on the user's hard drive, which I can do in a standard ASP.NET web form, but Silverlight has a different set of classes for accessing the OS environment. I tried accessing the FileStream object like this: FileStream fs = new FileStream(@"c:\test.txt", FileMode.Open, FileAccess.Read); The problem is that the fs variable is returning null and the stream is also null. I have already tried running the app under full trust and no trust. The test.txt file is located in my Resources folder under my project and there is an Access to this file is denied. A: The issue is that the Silverlight runtime is sandboxed, and you are trying to access a file that does not have full access rights. There are a few ways to solve this problem, but the easiest is probably to just use another app that has full access rights to the file, or access the file system via a file provider and the HttpClient class. Q: Using twitter API for search function I'm trying to pull some information from twitter and display them in a website. I'm trying to use the twitter API to pull tweets that has a specific key word in them. Here is an example of the JSON array I receive from the twitter API. [{"errors":[{"message":"Bad Authentication Data","code":215}]}] This error is a twitter api error. The problem is how do I fix this error? Is there a way to get the tweets without the error? How would I get the tweets with a specific key word from twitter? A: The error is telling you that the user_id (or 2d92ce491b
